ANFR, the French radio frequency regulatory agency, wants to increase the maximum radiation threshold from 6 to 9 V/m in public spaces.

Exposure to electromagnetic fields: ANFR launches a public consultation on the evolution of the threshold for atypical points

— JULY 10, 2025

The French National Frequency Agency (ANFR) is launching a public consultation on the evolution of the threshold for atypical points in terms of public exposure to electromagnetic fields. The objective is to adapt the system to the realities on the ground in a context of growing needs of mobile network users.
